ABOUT BENGAL ENGINEERING COLLEGE

Bengal Engineering College was established in 1856 and is the second oldest institution to provide formal engineering education in India. It is a pioneer in this field and has a long and rich heritage delivering both undergraduate and post-graduate/ Doctoral degree in all the major engineering disciplines. Many of its alumni have attained the shining glories as eminent engineers, scientists and teachers and have ushered in pathbreaking research in many fields of study.

It was originally a constituent of Calcutta University. In recognition of its outstanding services and eminence in engineering education, in 1993, it was elevated to the status of a university, Bengal Engineering and Science University (BESU). It has further grown to a Centre of Excellence in engineering and science education. In Feb 2014, finally through amendment of NIT Act in the Parliament, BESU attained its rightful position to become the first Indian Institute of Engineering Science and Technology (IEST), Shibpur.

ABOUT BEECAD

BECAAD is an association of Bengal Engineering College and BESU/ IEST alumni in the NCR and registered as non profit organisation under the societies act. It boasts membership of over 500 members who are actively involved in industry, Government, academics and research institutions in various capacities.

BECAAD organise several programmes over the years, the most important of these is Technical Seminars that focus on subjects of national importance and relevance. The present seminar is the latest in this series and will bring together many leading experts , specialists and professionals in the one-day event to discuss and deliberate on the subject of "Climate proofing and disaster preparedness,"

BECAAD hereby invite all engineering professionals & practitioners across the industry, the academicians, the policy makers and the administrators to participate, deliberate and contribute in the seminar to make it abundantly meaningful.

INTRODUCTION TO THE SEMINAR

Whether it was dreadful devastation of Gujarat earthquake (2001), Indian Ocean rim countries struck by the Tsunami (2004) or Louisiana hit by Hurricane Katrina (2005), Sichuan earthquake (2008), Haiti Earthquake (2010), Flood havoc in Uttarakhand (2013) or more recently Nepal-India hit by twin earthquake in April-May 2015; communities that suffer from such disasters also suffer from the side effects long after the social media stopped rolling and the relief-aid comes to a halt.

Disasters are increasing in intensity and number which are aggravated due to climate change coupled with unplanned development and haphazard urbanization. World Bank has estimated that on an average direct loss from disasters go up to two percent of Indian GDP and 12% of government revenue per year. OCHA asserts that seven Rupees in disaster response are saved by investing each Rupee in disaster preparedness.

Referring to global agreements like Sendai Framework (2015), Sustainable Development Goals and the Climate Change Agreement, India has prepared a disaster management plan and policy comprising of early warning systems, cyclone shelters, saline embankments, capacity building of communities

Govt of India has aimed at making India Disaster resilient by 2030 with the aim of every preventable death should be averted. Therefore, professionals need to come forward in disaster preparedness, mitigation, response, and recovery in line with the country's commitment to Sendai Goals (2015-30).

The seminar would delve into expert insights from both industry and academia. The panel will suggest best practices frame work, working models and refer to successful case studies in engineering sectors like Infrastructure, housing, energy, oil & gas, electronics and IT.
